Elite, Thoughtful Health Care

Dr. Evan Goldstein, the founder and CEO of Bespoke Surgical, started his concierge-style medical services practice in Manhattan in 2010 to address the health needs of the gay community he felt had been long-underserved. He opened his Beverly Hills office in September of last year in order to continue administering his three pillars of men's sexual health and surgical wellness—prevention, restoration, and rejuvenation—on a wider scale. Bespoke Surgical's expertise in the prevention, management and treatment of HPV, sexual education, and surgical correction of ailments and pathologies is delivered in the caring, attentive manner Dr. Goldstein is known for. The name of his practice was born while he was watching a film on Savile Row, and it captures the essence of the elite medical and surgical services Bespoke Surgical provides its patients. "Medicine doesn't have to be difficult," says this innovative Luminary. "People want access and to be heard—we are their advocate."
